Student Bursaries in 2015

The Society is pleased to be able to announce that it will be awarding a number of bursaries to members in the coming year. These will include an M J Dunn Fellowship to attend the Reading meeting, student travel awards (£250 max) for attendance and presentation of proteomics-related research at scientific meetings, and an award to attend the European Proteomics Summer School. Further details will be available early in 2015 on our website.

EuPA 2015 and HUPO 2015

The 2015 EuPA meeting will be held in Milano, Italy, from 23 – 26 June (www.eupa2015.org) and the HUPO 2015 World Congress in Vancouver, Canada, from, 27 – 23 September 2015 (www.hupo2015.org).

9th European Summer School, 2 – 8 August 2015, Italy.

The topic for the 2015 Summer School is 'Advanced Proteomics'. Registration and abstract submission are now open. Further information: <http://www.proteomic-basics.eu/>. Why not apply for a bursary to assist in attending this (see above)?

Membership Renewal 2015 – due by 30 April to get reduced rates at BSPR 2015

Members who pay by standing order will have received confirmation of this and those who pay by cheque will have received a membership renewal notice. If you have received neither of these, nor a note that your SO has not been paid, you will no longer be a member of BSPR in good standing – and will need to renew your membership to qualify for the reduced member rate at BSPR 2015.

Looking forward: HUPO 2017 – Dublin

We are delighted to announce that BSPR will be hosting the HUPO Annual World Congress in 2017 in Dublin. Congratulations to Steve Pennington and his colleagues in successfully bidding for this event and are who now hard at work in initiating the organization.
